

Online course

Learning goals

Basic knowledge of GDP

After completing this course, you can:

-  name which rules and regulations apply to the distribution of medicines;
-  describe what GDP means;
-  explain to whom GDP-rules apply;
-  explain why GDP is important;
-  identify the risks associated with the distribution of medicines;
-  describe counterfeit medicines;
-  indicate which measures can be taken to prevent counterfeits from entering the legal circuit;
-  describe who is authorised to order, deliver and receive medicines;
-  distinguish the different storage conditions;
-  describe how storage conditions can be checked;
-  indicate the different statuses we distinguish as well as when which status applies;
-  name the points of attention to consider when distributing medicines;
-  describe the points of attention when receiving medicines;
-  explain the general requirements for different areas that are used for the distribution of pharmaceuticals;
-  explain the difference between FIFO and FEFO;
-  name the tasks and responsibilities of the Responsible Person (RP);
-  specify the requirements for the transportation of medicines;
-  explain what is meant by Cold Chain;
-  name the factors which play a role in monitoring the Cold Chain;
-  explain what a data logger is and what it is used for;
-  describe how to handle returned goods;
-  describe what a recall is and state the importance of traceability;
-  describe who is responsible for GDP compliance when outsourcing activities.